GREEK WAR ON TURKEY REPORTED UNDER WAY

Offensive Against Kemalists Started, Smyrna Telegraphs

HAVE HARD TASK

Must Vanquish 200,000 Seasoned Troops If They Are To Succeed

(Reuter's Service)

Smyrna, March 23.—It is reported that the expected Greek offensive against the Kemalists has begun.

The causes back of this movement grew out of Greek dissatisfaction with the decisions agreed upon by the Allies at the London conference last month, under which most of the points in dispute between Turkey and Greece were settled in favor of Turkey.

Shortly after the announcement of the decisions of the conference despatches from Athens told of widespread indignation throughout Greece, culminating in the preparations for military action. Last week it was announced that the classes of 1913, 1914, and 1915 had been called to the colors to reinforce the Greek troops in Anatolia. Crowds in the streets were reported as cheering for Greece and war. The King, in a message to the Greeks, declared that the Turkish Nationalists were again attempting to overthrow the situation established by the Treaty of Sevres, and were concentrating against the Greeks. Reinforcements were necessary to protect the Greek populations and secure the definitive pacification of the Orient, he said.

That the Greeks will not have an easy victory may be judged from the fact that Kemal Pasha is leading 200,000 seasoned troops who formed the best part of the splendid Turkish army, which held the Allies in check along the Dardanelles the greater part of the war.

These forces are equipped with plenty of munitions, even to tanks and aircraft, and their style of warfare—guerilla—as well as their numbers, renders the attempt of Greece with 80,000 troops to beat them in their own country very difficult.

The Allies hold Constantinople and a zone extending eastward some sixty miles, and southward they hold the coastline by their warships.

The Greeks hold Smyrna under the protection of British dreadnaughts and have their farthest outpost at Balat, some 120 miles to the northeast.

TOKIO JOURNAL WANTS JAPAN TO HIT MILITARISM

Should Follow Lead Of Britain And America, Says The Jiji

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Tokio, March 23.—The Jiji in an editorial, commenting on the British Naval estimates, says that the example set is a big step towards the promotion of world peace on a permanent basis.

British sentiment, it contends, is reciprocated by American statesmen, and it is reasonable to believe that Great Britain and America are approaching each other on the question of armmament restriction. Japan can follow suit by modifying her plan of defence.

"Why," asks the Jiji, "should Japan not set an example elsewhere by retrenching in her military expenditure, which she can do without an agreement with other Powers?"

Tokio, March 23.—The War Office has officially issued the following declaration made by the Commander of the garrison in Saghalien on March 21, regarding the contemplated occupation of Nikolaievsk and other points:

"Russian residents are requested to trust in the troops' sympathy and motive for the proposed action, and engage peacefully in their respective businesses."

LLOYD GEORGE HAS NEW PLAN TO STOP WAR IN IRELAND

Premier Will Propose Constituent Assembly Of North And South

17 MORE KILLED

Fighting Unusually Severe In County Kerry; Police Rout Rebels

(Reuter's Service)

London, March 23.—In the House of Commons today, in the course of a debate, in which the Opposition, notably Mr. Asquith, criticised the Government's policy in Ireland and urged the Government to secure a truce, if possible, before Easter, Mr. Lloyd George declared that the Government proposed to put in operation an act which was more generous than any previously introduced in the House of Commons.

If the Irish availed themselves of it and chose representatives in the elections in May, the Northern and Southern parliaments together would form a constituent assembly, fully empowered to consider and recommend changes. If they refused, the Premier said, the responsibility would be theirs and the Government would have to fall back on other measures for governing the country.

Mr. Lloyd George denied Mr. Asquith's implication that the Government's policy in Ireland had failed after six months of experiment. He declared that he had personally reviewed the cases of a number of condemned rebels, and found their guilt to be so blatant that neither he nor any other Premier would be justified in interfering with the execution of justice. The Government, he went on, loathed the killings and counter-killings, but their indications of preparedness to discuss matters with responsible leaders of Irish opinion had produced no reply.

The Premier declared that there would never be peace in Ireland until somebody, on behalf of the Irish, accepted the same responsibility as the Government were prepared to accept on behalf of England, Scotland and Wales. He was not ashamed that the Government had thus far failed to solve the Irish question, because some of the greatest men in the history of England had previously tried and failed. In conclusion, Mr. Lloyd George appealed to the House to assist the Government to take the only steps available to establish authority in Ireland to such an extent that the real mind of Ireland would have a free opportunity to declare itself.

London, March 23.—Eight Sinn Feiners were killed and twenty wounded and four policemen slightly injured in fighting lasting three severely injured in an Kerry, where a patrol of nine policemen was ambushed by 200 ambush at Carrow-Kennedy, ly routed. London, March 23.—Replying to a question in the House of Lords, Lord Lytton declared that protest meetings and general abstention from work at Nagpur, arising from the arrest of a prominent local resident on the charge of sedition on February 23 culminated in disturbances in which five thousand persons participated. Two European officers and seven policemen were injured by missiles. The crowd looted the liquor shops. A small force of troops was called out and order restored.

OLD PARTIES IN ENGLAND TO UNITE FOR WAR ON REDS

Growing Labor Strength Stirs Conservatives To Action

CLOSE RANKS, CRY

Lloyd George Likely To Be Leader—Points Out Dangers

(Reuter's Service)

London, March 23.—The formation of a new party under the leadership of Mr. Lloyd George was foreshadowed by Sir Ernest Wild, (Coalition Unionist) who presided at a luncheon given to the Premier in the House of Commons by the "new members of the Coalition group." Sir Ernest said that the group consisted of 112 members of the House, drawn from both wings of the Coalition, who honestly believed in the Coalition as the only form of government and who wholeheartedly supported Mr. Lloyd George and Mr. Austen Chamberlain. He expressed the hope that there would eventually be a great national centre party, pledged to say to Mr. Lloyd George:—"Whither thou goest we will go."

Mr. Lloyd George in reply emphasized that the great peril of today was the rise of a new party with very subversive aims, the self-styled Labor party, which was really socialist and which was tearing parties to pieces and on the way to tearing society to pieces.

The great military danger which had engendered the Coalition, the Premier continued, was past, but greater, more insidious and more permament dangers remained, arising from the new ideas and organisations that had suddenly arisen to great power and were even now a real danger. The phenomonal rise of the so-called Labor party was not fully realised, just as the German danger was not realised. It had already destroyed the Liberal party and was fighting to destroy everything that had been built up during generations, including private enterprise and organisation, commerce, industry, credit and parliamentary institutions whereas Labor in 1918 had polled half as many votes as the Coalitionists polled, the Coalition had polled 226,000 and Labor 201,000 at the bye-elections in 1920 and 1921. If Socialism succeeded in mobilising an untrained and uninstructed new electorate we would shortly see triumph a party without experience and with a policy dictated by irresponsible juntas in the background. The Premier concluded by urging all those who realised the danger to abandon divisions, close ranks and fight the Socialists who were consolidating and uniting their forces and making gigantic efforts to secure a new electorate.

NEW BILLS CALL FOR CHANGES IN DUTCH ELECTIONS

RUSSIANS HELD BECAUSE OF AID TO CHINA'S FOES

Peking Explains Detention On Grounds They Are Taking Part In Plots

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Peking, March 23.—The Waichiaopo has issued the following statement to the Chinese papers, regarding the various Russians whom the Chinese police are detaining:

"Beyond a doubt many Russian officers and men were involved in the capture of Urga. This action is a direct assault upon China, against which the Government must necessarily take preventive measures, since it is the prime duty of every Government to preserve peace and order in its territory.

"There is sufficient evidence to show that many Russians are both instigating and directing disturbances in Chinese territory and are actually allying themselves with the enemies of China. That they are associated with the present movement at Urga is a generally recognised fact.

"They are audacious enough to make Peking the center of their activities, and have established agencies in many cities so as to get into closed touch with the Russians who are directing and instigating the disturbances in Mongolia and along the Chinese Eastern Railway.

"From the clandestine methods adopted and from evidence gathered from documents seized, it is clear that China's interest is much impaired by this action.

"Therefore the continued detention of those already arrested has become necessary and is but an ordinary method of preserving peace and order, against which no question can be raised in foreign circles.

"During the detention of the persons arrested, they will be well-treated and as soon as circumstances admit, they will be released."

HUPEH MILITARY GOVERNOR TO AID HUNAN'S TUCHUN

(Staff Wire To THE CHINA PRESS*)*

Hankow, March 24.—With the consent of the Central Government, the Military Governor of Hupeh, General Wang Chuan-yuan, is planning to extend his help to Chao Hung-ti, Tuchun of Hunan, to resist the attack of General Li Lieh-chun on Western Hunan. Hupeh troops will be marched to Yochow, Chihli forces will be ordered to duty at Chinglingchi and Western Hunan, while warships will be despatched to Changsha waters.

The outbreak between the two opposing forces in Changsha is expected daily, because of the internal dissension among the dissatisfied factions in that city. Chao Hung-ti is destitute of funds and is unable to meet the daily demands of his troops for rations.

Numerous Improvements Promised In Municipal Council's Annual Report

New Szechuen Road Bridge To Be Started Shortly; Sewage System For Central District; Adequate Roads And Park Improvements Planned

The re-construction of the Szechuen road bridge to permit of heavy, modern traffic, along with the adaptation of other lesser bridges within the Settlement boundaries to heavy loads; the question of additional roads in the built-up areas to accommodate the increasing traffic, together with a general summary of the progress and business of the city are discussed at length in part two of the yearly report and budget for the year 1921, just issued by the Shanghai Municipal Council.

The commissioner of public works reports that his department has suffered, along with other employers of labor, on account of the unsettled state of the labor market. "The condition of affairs" the report reads "has not amounted to anything approaching 'labor unrest'. . . . The shortage is due to the universal law of supply and demand, as with the increased industrial and general development of Shanghai a shortage has occurred, particularly of skilled men."

Outside work has been dislocated by the forced cancellation of the contract for the supply of road and other materials on account of non-delivery, and a new contract had to be enterd into.

SZECHUEN ROAD BRIDGE

Contractors tendering bids for the re-construction of the Szechuen road bridge have been apprehensive, apparently, the report states, about the construction of the cofferdam, and have in consequence, submitted very high prices to provide for unforeseen contingencies, and many contractors have refrained from bidding. It was decided, therefore, not to accept any of the prices, and the more difficult

French Discussing Additional Enforcement Measures

(Reuter's Service)

Paris, March 23.—The German Government has replied to the Reparations Commission's note of March 16, refusing to pay the 12,000,000,000 gold marks demanded by the Reparations Commission before May 1 to cover the cost of the armies of occupation and rejecting the Allies' estimate of the deliveries Germany has already made. The reply demands the convocation of a meeting of experts to decide upon this matter and adds that Germany is unable to pay.

A serious situation is now threatened. The Allies had already exchanged views in anticipation of an unfavorable answer and the French press now talks of the possibility of new sanctions.

Paris, March 23.—In a statement before the Senate Finance and Foreign Affairs Committees, M. Briand declared that he was expecting fresh German proposals, particularly in regard to possible industrial participation in the reconstruction of the devastated regions, while as regards the 12,000,000,000 gold marks still owed by Germany, the stipulations of the Peace Treaty in regard to this matter would be immediately enforced if Germany failed to pay.

Replying to the question as to whether other financially coercive measures, such as the imposition of taxes on the Rhineland or the seizure of the produce of mines or forests, had been contemplated at the London Conference, the Premier stated that this very delicate question was still the subject of deliberation.

Berlin, March 23.—The recent Communist manifestations are assuming a more violent form, particularly in Central Germany.

A man was arrested at Rodewisch carrying a bag of dynamite, and persons have been injured in bomb explosions at Leipzig, Freiburg and Dresden. Violent robberies have been perpetrated at Mansfeld and Elbra, and a crowd bombarded the police barracks at Hettstedt, while the Communists have occupied the large shipyards at Hamburg and hoisted the Red Flag.

Berlin, March 24.—Communist disturbances at Hamburg have led to bloodshed and outbreaks have developed to such an extent in Hamburg that the Senate has declared the city to be in a minor state of siege. The big ship yard owners Blohm and Voss have closed their works, while a determined attempt by workmen to force an entry into the yard of the Vulkan Company ended in the police using their firearms and throwing handgrenades; four workmen were killed and twelve severely and fourteen slightly, injured.

A Communist demonstration on the Heiligengeistfeld failed in consequence of the police establishing a strong cordon with barbed wire and armored cars which the crowd stoned. The trams have for the greater part suspended operation.

London, March 23.—Replying in the House of Commons to Colonel Wedgewood Benn, the Home Secretary, Mr. Short, repeated that the Allies represented at the London Conference had agreed to obtain from their respective parliaments powers requiring their nationals to pay a proportion of the payments on the purchase of German goods to their Governments, and of the Allies who were not represented at the conference, Portugal, Siam and Rumania stated that they intended to take similar steps.

WORKERS BUSY RAISING FUNDS FOR FAMINE AID

Canvassing Teams Covering City; Plans For Sweepstakes Near Maturity

Canvassing teams in the famine relief drive are working steadily at the task of covering Shanghai, Nantao, Chapei and Pootung and it is expected that by the time the campaign comes to a close next Thursday—a considerable sum of money will be added to the fund as the result of these personal solicitations.

Plans have gone well forward for the "sweepstakes" which is expected to be one of the principal factors of the Shanghai effort. The hope of the promotors is to raise $1,000,000 by this means, half of which will go to the relief fund. The idea of the sweeps is to be credited to General Ho Feng-ling, local Defense Commissioner. The tickets are now being printed and will be in circulation within the next few days. They are of $50 denomination, divisible into $5 fractions.

WOMEN'S SOCIETY REPORT

At a General Committee meeting of the Women's Famine Relief Society held yesterday morning, at which Lady Fraser presided, it was decided that the subscription list of the Society shall be kept open, but the working parties will close owing to the coming hot weather.

The following extract is taken from a letter received from Mrs. D. MacGillivray:

"I know our Mission would like their thanks to extend if possible to every single member of the different sewing circles and to the packers and all who have worked so unselfishly. The workers in Honan could not have carried on without the help at this end, and all may have the joy of knowing they have saved many lives. In Changtao they are now helping 1,000 nursing mothers. One letter said that bran was being as carefully guarded and cherished as nuggets of gold. Though the sewing meetings are stopping, I suppose the Committee will still exist to receive funds."

The Society is very grateful for this expression of thanks.

THANKS FOR ASSISTANCE

The Committee wishes to express its sincere thanks to Messrs. Maitland and Co. for the use of their Auction Room for packing. This room has been at the disposal of the Packing Committee on two days a week, since November 24, and during that period the Committee has received much help and consideration from those who so kindly lent the room.

Messrs. Lavers and Clark have also given untiring help in acting as forwarding agents for the consignments sent to Honan and other places, and the Society is most sincerely grateful to them for this splendid help in making this part of their work so smooth.

RESIGNATION REGRETTED

The Committee has received with regret the resignation of Mrs Shadgett, owing to her departure from Shanghai, at a near date. Mrs. Shadgett was one of the first Committee members to start a working party; she also collected a lot of subscriptions, and was one of the chief promoters of the dance held on March 3.

Ex-U.S. Soldier Ousted By Legion

(Reuter's Service)

New York, March 23.—Lieut. Colonel Alexander Anderson, formerly commander of the 165th. Infantry Regiment in the United States Army, has been expelled from the American Legion—an organisation of veterans of the great war—owing to his having uttered sentiments alleged to be disloyal in the course of the recent German-Irish mass meeting at New York to protest against the presence of black troops on the Rhine.

Russians Regain Jewels In Italy

(Reuter's Service)

Rome, March 24.—With reference to the valuable jewellery, money, etc. found by the Italian customs officials in the luggage of the Russian trade commission which recently arrived here, it is now announced that the members of the mission have paid the customs dues on their luggage, and have been allowed to remove it from the Customs House.

Numerous Improvements Promised In Municipal Council's Annual Report

work, such as the construction of the cofferdam and the driving of the piles will be carried out by the Public Works Department. In the meantime steel work for the girders and span is being carried on in Hankow.

The advent of heavy motor freight vehicles in increasing numbers also forces a consideration of the safety of the old wooden bridges over the Soochow Creek and elsewhere. A type of bridge without overhead steel work, partly or entirely of reinforced concrete is suggested, with first attention urged for the Thibet road and the Honan road crossings.

INADEQUACY OF ROADS

The inadequacy of roads is particularly stressed. It is pointed out that Shanghai, with its long blocks, and many alleyways, from centers congested with Chinese inhabitants, provide a volume of traffic for the main roads unprecedented in any Western city. Additional roads, however, are only possible in the built-up areas at prohibitive cost. But plans proposed for the next year for relief of road congestion are promised as comparatively drastic in character, particularly in the outlying areas, where the land may be purchased at comparatively reasonable prices. The great width of Avenue Edward VII is referred to, together with the criticism often heard that this road is nothing more than a playground for the Chinese, but, it is suggested that 20 years hence this road will not be considered any too wide, and the foresight shown in providing such a road will be commended.

SEWAGE DISPOSAL

Schemes for the disposal of sewage from the portion of the central district east of Honan road, are reported to be well in hand, and it is proposed to commence operations on the construction of sewers shortly. These sewers will be so laid that the water-borne contents will flow, by gravity, and at a velocity that will ensure self-cleansing, to the low level points. From these points the sewage will be automatically lifted by means of pumps to a high level, and, proceeding again on its way, will be enabled to travel by several such stages to the disposal works. Six pumping stations will be erected, all underground, so that they will present no objectionable feature.

MUNICIPAL BUILDING

Concerning the new Administration Building, the commissioner reports that the shortage of labor and the delay in obtaining necessary materials is retarding the completion of the work. The forces of labor are being concentrated upon the completion of the building by sections. The heating apparatus, perhaps, can not be completed for use during the winter. A temporary provision of stoves, however, has been installed to overcome this difficulty. The Finance Department occupied their quarters in the new building in September, and the Electricity Department moved in during December.

WIDENING OF BUND

A chart showing the proposed extension of the Public Garden, and a widening of the Bund, between Peking road and the Garden bridge, is contained in the report. The scheme briefly, is the widening of the Bund, with the provision for a motor car rank in the center as now is provided from Peking road southward. A fifty-foot cut-in on the Garden would follow, but this would be compensated for by a triangular fill on the north edge bordering the Soochow creek, measuring over 150 feet on the Whangpoo river side, and going back to a point to the Bridge.

HONGKEW PARK POPULAR

The popularity of the Hongkew Recreation Grounds is particularly remarked upon, and it is suggested that the following additions and improvements be made in this park:

1.—An orchestral bandstand, erected in a secluded position.

2.—An open air swimming pool.

3.—A roller skating rink.

4.—The laying out of the section on the west of the ground.

The park has been the scene of a number of athletic meets, one of which, held by the Japanese being attended by 4,000 people.

A diagram showing the number of structures erected annually during the past twenty years, shows the line beginning at 2,800 in 1901, going up the scale of 5,400 in 1906, receding to 1,200 in 1911, and reaching the apex in 1914, at 9,000. Since that year fewer structures have been erected, with 3,000 shown at 1918, and the line gradually climbing again to 1921.

Permits, shown also on a chart have increased gradually from 4,800 in 1901, to 14,600 in 1920.

Anglo-Soviet Pact Agitates Harbin

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Harbin, March 20.—The news of the signing of the Anglo-Russian Trade Agreement has created a tremendous sensation here as it was generally believed that the Soviets were on the eve of collapse.

The Left press regards the signature of the Agreement as a victory and a token of the Soviet's strength.

The Right press, on the contrary, believes that the desperate situation in Russia has forced the Soviets to surrender to all the British terms and sign an Agreement which although unsatisfactory to Moscow, they hope will give them moral support and win back the wavering adherence of the masses.

AMERICA GIVES THREE MILLION TO FAMINE AID

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Peking, March 24.—It is announced that G.$3,300,000 are being sent from America for famine relief. Of this sum the American Red Cross has contributed G.$1,000,000. The American Committee is sending over the remainder, which the American Advisory Committee will divide among the working committees in all the famine districts.

"Civilian Clothes"

"Civilian Clothes," a comedy played in Shanghai when the Denniston Players were here 14 months ago, delighted another enthusiastic audience at the Lyceum last night and the popular company was every bit as good in the production as when they were here before.

Leo Kennedy again played the part of Sam McGinnis remarkably well and he was ably supported by the others in the cast—even those who had but small parts.

Warda Howard played her difficult role easily and Vaughan Morgan made a success of his Zack Hart, playing the part of an old man while yet a couple of score years away from the aimed-at mark is a difficult proposition. Ray Clifton handled his lines and business nicely while Bill Howard was excellent all through.

Valentine Sydney made a naughty vamp and Florence Chapman, Pressy Preston and Shirley Huxley were good in smaller parts.

Messrs. Neville, Belbridge, and Reginald Wykeham rounded out an excellent presentation.

Tonight the Lyceum is dark as it is Good Friday. Tomorrow afternoon the Company will repeat "She Walked In Her Sleep" and the offering for Saturday night is "Baby Mine."

New Light Thrown On Small Robbery

(Reuter's Service)

Toronto, March 23.—Sensational evidence has been given in the trial of John Doughty, who is charged with stealing £21,000 worth of bonds from his former employer, Ambrose Small, a millionaire, who disappeared from Toronto on December 2, 1919.

This evidence was given by Fred Davilla, who printed the programs of the Grand Opera House, of which Small was the owner. He declared that Doughty nine months before Small disappeared suggested that Small might be killed, and submitted a plan whereby they might obtain £100,000 of Small's wealth.

Tells Of Symbolism Of The Forbidden City

Mrs. Ayscough Gives Entertaining And Instructive Talk To Royal Asiatic Society

The mysteries of the Purple Forbidden City, the intricate symbolism of its columns, courts, palaces and vast open spaces; the delicate reminders of the necessity for right conduct set before the rulers; and the whole majestic conception of the harmony between heaven and earth worked out in the marble and brick of a city were explained yesterday afternoon by Mrs. F. Ayscough in a lecture before the Royal Asiatic Society in the symbolism of Peking.

"In studying the architecture of the Chinese, we must think also of their philosophy, for both spring from the same source," Mrs. Ayscough said, "At the head of the Chinese philosophical system is Shan-ti, the lord and ruler of the universe. From him emanates the Tai-chi, the ultimate principle of life, divided into two essences one, the yang, is the heavenly, positive, and masculine force; the other, the ying, represents the earthly, negative and feminine essence. The positive force transforms and the negative force unites; between them they produce the five elements of fire, wood, metal, earth and water, besides the four seasons. By mutual influence the two bring about all things in the visible, palpable world, a double work of evolution and dissolution. Man is of course the most intelligent of all things, the transcendent operation of the Tai-chi having allotted him a nature that is perfectly good.

TAI-CHI DETERMIND RULER

"The ruler was supposed to unite harmoniously in his person the principles of heaven, earth, and man. According to the older theory, anyone who showed that he possessed the 'tai-chi' in its highest form was chosen to be ruler. At first the emperor was elected; but even when the crown became hereditary, the principle of primogeniture was never acknowledged and the people's right to rebellion became a duty in case the emperor proved unworthy of its trust. The older rulers assumed great responsibility; all the difficulties in the Empire being laid at their door.

"The strong connection between the ruler of heaven and the ruler of earth cannot be too strongly insisted upon. The Heavenly Emperor lived in a constellation of fifteen stars called 'The Purple Enclosure,' and the earthly emperor lived in 'The Purple Forbidden City,' rich with symbols representing the home of his heavenly confrere."

Mrs. Ayscough referred to Professor Schlegel's theory that the dragon really symbolises the sun, though other legends of a different typye later grew up around this mythical object. Nine sons of the dragon, who bear but small resemblance to their parent, recur frequently in the carvings and statuary of the Forbidden City. Each has a special penchant, one, with a dragonlike head and a turtle's shell, has a fondness for carrying heavy weights; another, represented as a gargoyle, loves the freshness of running water; a third revels in the fragrance of the incense-burners; another loves to gaze into distance and is therefore always set on roof-tops; and a fifth, half-dragon and half-tiger, appears occasionally in the decorations to remind the Emperor that a living creature of the same character is likely to descend upon him if he fails in his princely duties.

DESCRIBES CITY

The speaker referred to a description of the Forbidden City by A. E. Van Braam-Houckeest, who visited Peking in 1784 and who was the last foreigner to enter the city until the opening of the gates after the Boxer disturbance. This visitor was particularly struck with the absence of militarism, as there were no soldiers in view in the city and no guard-house placed even at the entrance to the forbidden precincts.

The beauties of the city as it has been for centuries and as it still is today were illustrated by a series of delicately colored slides. Walls and gates showing the yellow of the earth principle and the red of the heavenly, columns with clouds represented in marble at the top to serve as spiritual sign-posts for the Emperor, the "Glory of Virtue Gates" for the civil and military officials, the Gate of the Sun at its Zenith, and the Supreme Harmony Gate used only by the Emperor were shown in a series of exquisite views. One of the most striking pictures was a scene of the Golden Waters River, spanned by five white bridges over which only the Emperor might pass. As water is an important factor of the earth principle, Chinese convention in architecture demands that it flow before halls and palaces. Other views shown included the Great Harmony Hall, with its magnificent throne, dragon screen, incense burners, and perforated iron columns for the rise of perfumed smoke; the Palace of the Cloudless Heaven; the Hall of Fusion and Permeation; the Pavilion of a thousand Autumns; and the Rain of Flowers Pavilion, where Heaven was supposed to have sent a shower of flowers to bless the meditations of a pious Buddhist priest.

SHOWS ROYAL CHAMBER

A glimpse of the Imperial bedchamber showed yellow curtains knotted into the symbol of longevity, the orchid of perfection, and other symbols of the celestial house. In the apartments of the Empress was seen a mirror to represent the circle of eternity, and conventionalisations of the pine, bamboo, and plum blossoms to portray never-failing loyalty.

The last view of the series showed the tomb of Confucius in Shantung.

"The belief of this philosopher in the political value of personal goodness was in some sort justified after all, for the great and inspiring pattern which he sought in vain among the princes of his time was to be afforded in the end by no other than himself," Mrs. Ayscough stated in closing. "He is the throneless king, forever enshrined in the hearts of his countrymen."

At the close of the lecture a vote of thanks was extended to Mrs. Ayscough by members of the society. At a meeting of the council held before the address, Sir Everard Fraser was elected president in place of Dr. Stanley, who recently left for home.

The Rouble Relapses After Brief Rally

Russian Notes Slump Following Rise Of Last Week

The moribund paper rouble, which last week, upon receipt of despatches regarding the Anglo-Soviet trade agreement, reacted after the fashion of a frazzled race horse introduced to a hypodermic-full of jazz has become comatose again. Yesterday roubles would have sold at something less than a third of a tael cent apiece if anybody could have been found to buy them.

After the flutter of last Friday when the notes soared to the dizzy figure of a mex. cent per each the gas gave out and they've been doing a steady volplane ever since.

The rise never did become important enough for the banks to give it attention but the exchange shops did some business, mostly with Chinese buyers and these latter lost interest and capital when later despatches on the trade pact made it apparent that gold would be the trading medium between the two countries and that national debts were a question which didn't enter into the matter.

Banking men opine that the rouble is a long, long way from convalescence and will derive no immediate benefit from the trade arrangement.

TEACHER FACES TWO CHARGES IN AMERICAN COURT

W. W. Woodbury Accused Of Impersonating Officer And Carrying Weapon

Winfield W. Woodbury, an American, who gave his occupation as that of teacher, was arraigned in the United States Court for China late yesterday afternoon, on the charge of having impersonated an officer, and, further, with having concealed firearms in his possession. Upon request of counsel the accused was released on G.$1,500 bail, for hearing before Commissioner F. J. Schuhl at 10 o'clock Saturday morning.

Woodbury was arrested Wednesday night while he with two Chinese accomplices were searching a Chinese dwelling house at 876 Chekiang road, in the guise of officers looking for opium. The arrest was made by three foreign officers who were brought to the place by a brother of the tenant, who, doubting the genuineness of the searchers, had reported the affair.

A subsequent report by the tenant stated that $45 in silver and three five dollar notes were missing from the boxes ransacked by the accused.

Woodbury was represented by Mr. L. W. Hartigan at the arraignment. Mr. Hartigan gave as grounds for his request for adjournment, that he had only just been engaged by the accused, and had not sufficient time to formulate his defense. He offered $500 cash bail for his client, and when this was refused he raised it to $700. Mr. Schuhl, however, advised that he had already set bail at G.$1,500, and, considering the seriousness of the offense, he did not feel inclined to reduce it. Inspector T. Kerrigan, who represented the police, urged the higher bail, He indicated that a further charge of having been implicated in armed robberies might be brought against the accused. Mr. Hartigan then offered a Fidelity bond, which was accepted.

The two Chinese who were concerned in the charge with Woodbury, were remanded for one week at their hearing in the Mixed Court yesterday morning.

MAY GAMES TO GET BOOST IN NORTH CHINA

Dr. Gray And Elwood Brown Will Speak To Schools And Colleges

MALAYA NOT TO COME

Permanent Secretary For Far East A. A. Is Plan Now On Top

Dr. John H. Gray, honorary secretary of the China Contest Committee, which is to stage the Far Eastern Championship Games here in May, will start for Nanking this morning with Elwood S. Brown, the man who originated the games, to create interest in the coming meet.

Both Brown and Dr. Gray will deliver addresses to schools and colleges in Nanking, Tientsin, Peking and other centers and Dr. Gray will exhibit moving pictures of the 1915 games which were held in Shanghai. The bulk of the athletes for the China team will come from North China.

Mr. Brown said yesterday that China and Japan will be asked to support a permanent secretary for the Far Eastern Association as the permanent alliance with the World Olympic Committee necessitates the recording and filing of performances by Far Eastern athletes. The Philippines has agreed to provide one third of the funds for the office.

In all probability the man to be selected will be Franklin Brown, national physical director for the Young Men's Christian Association in Japan. He has been in Japan for nine years and has been intimately connected with the Far Eastern Games since their origin. In addition he was at the Antwerp Games and made a good impression with the members of the World Olympic Committee.

Malaya has definitely decided not to enter the May games but will enter a team at the championships to be held in Osaka in 1923, according to a letter received yesterday by Dr. Gray.

AUCTION BRIDGE

Question—The dealer bids a spade, second hand two hearts, third hand holds four small spades, three small hearts and three to the king in each of the other suits, on which she goes to two spades. The dealer insists that this is not an assisting hand.—E. L.

Answer—The dealer is correct. The four small trumps are worth nothing, as there is no suit short enough to trump. The two kings are the only possible tricks in the hand, and as the dealer has a right to expect three tricks in dummy, this player is assisting with less than average instead of more.

Question—Hearts are trumps. A ruffs a spade, and B at once asks him, "No clubs, partner?" to which A replies, "Yes, I have clubs, but no spades." Can the dealer call A's spades as exposed cards?—F. T.

Answer—As the denomination of the clubs is not mentioned, they do not seem to come under the law 51e (not indexed) which speaks only of "a" card mentioned.

Question—Playing pivot, after the players change seats, it often happens that in the rotation of the deal the same player would deal again. In such cases should the deal pass to the left?—M. J. W.

Answer—In pivot, the deal must be out for at the beginning of every change in partnerships, just as in the ordinary rubber. The pivot system decides nothing but the partnership and the seats, one of which is usually retained throughout by the pivot player, who should also be the scorekeeper.

FIVE HUNDRED

Question—A insists that in playing a no-trumper, the joker is of no value except to keep control. B maintains that the holder of the joker may declare any suit she wishes.—M. S. C.

Answer—In a no-trumper, the joker is a suit by itself, being the only trump, to be used only when unable to follow suit. If the joker is led, however, the leader may demand any particular suit to be played to it, just as if the joker were a card of that unit.

POKER

Question—In a six-hand game the dealer gives five cards to five of the players; only four to the sixth. A bets it is a misdeal; B bets the short hand is dead.—F. B.

Answer—The question depends on what the player who was dealt only four cards did with them. If he lifted any part of the short hand, it is foul; but if he counted the cards face down and found one short, the dealer must supply the deficiency.

Question—What are the odds in favor of improving a hand that contains a small pair, if no ace is held up as a "kicker"?—G. W. L.

Answer—The odds are not in favor of any improvement but against it. Holding up the kicker, it is 4 to 1 against any improvement; 12 to 1 against getting threes; 8 to 1 against getting two pairs.

RUM

Question—One of the players has laid down all his cards but two—a pair of sixes. He draws another six. Can he lay down the three sixes and call out, or must he keep a card in hand to discard after drawing?—A. A.

Answer—The rule is that a player must discard after drawing; but if he has no cards left after laying down a legitimate combination, the game must be over, and keeping a card to discard for the benefit of persons who cannot play any more is manifestly absurd.

RAIN BOTHERS FOOTBALL AGAIN; RACES ON; TOO

One First League And But Three In Second Division For Saturday

The rain yesterday and the races tomorrow will probably derange the already much-dampened schedule of the football games. The only first league game on the card between the Shanghai Football Club and the Shanghai Recreation Club has been postponed until April 6.

Of the five second league fixtures, two have been definitely postponed. There are the games between the S. F. C. and the S. R. C. and between the Rangers and the Customs.

IS YOUR FAMILY LARGE OR SMALL?

Whether you have several children or only one the experience of Mrs. T. J. Rose, a mother living at Lake Talon, Ontario, Canada, will interest you. She says:—"I have found Baby's Own Tablets a great medicine for the little ones. My baby was badly troubled with colic, but before I had used half the contents of a bottle Baby's Own Tablets he was entirely cured. Since then he has grown well and rests nicely at night."

Equally helpful and harmless to the youngest infant as to the child of 6 years or more, Baby's Own Tablets are a proved remedy for infantile indigestion, constipation, colic, diarrhoea, colds, croup, teething troubles and worms. They promote natural restful sleep, increase the appetite and aid development.

Chemists sell them, also obtainable at 60 cents the vial, post free, from the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., 96 Szechuen Road, Shanghai.

WOOD VAGRANT, TO SERVE ONE YEAR AT BILIBID

Horace M. Wood, an American civil engineer who has twice been before the United States Court for China charged with vagrancy, was sentenced to one year in Bilibid prison, Manila, in a sentence handed down by Judge C. S. Lobingier yesterday.

The sentence came as the result of Wood having been arrested after a difficulty with a Chinese merchant here concerning the disposition of some money Wood had forwarded the merchant from Manila with which to redeem some of his property from pawn.

Judge Lobingier, in his judgment recalled that Wood had served nine months in Bilibid, that he had been offered transportation to San Francisco which he had refused, and that he had then come to Shanghai and fallen into his former evil ways.

(d) In article 97 the words "two hundred and fifty" shall be substituted for the word "twenty-five."

Tcherkasskaya Concert

Many of the best solos in the repetoire of Madame M. B. Tcherkasskaya, Russian prima donna, will be included in the program of the popular concert which she is to give next Monday evening at 9:15 p.m. in the Town Hall. The range in vocal style will be a wide one, as the program includes selections from Verdi, Wagner, Tchaikowsky, Boito Ponchielli, and several other composers.

Madame Tcherkasskaya, who has already appeared several times in Shanghai, has a long and distinguished record as a grand opera star. Making her first appearance in the Mariinsky Theater in Petrograd at a performace attended by the Emperor, she soon joined the Imperial Opera and was popularly considered to have no equal in Wagnerian productions. She later scored flattering success with La Scala Opera Company in Milan, and in Russian concerts given at the Paris Grand Opera Theater under the direction of Arthur Nikish. In the Stadio Theater, Athens, one of her concerts attracted an audience of 70,000. During her Far Eastern tour, she has appeared in Egypt, Ceylon, and Japan.

The Shanghai Municipal Symphony Orchestra, conducted by Maestro Paci, will assist in her performance. Prices range from two dollars to fifty cents, and seats may be booked at Moutrie's, the Palace Hotel, and the Town Hall.

Lounge And Office To Open Next Week

No time has been lost in taking advantage of the kindness of the Chartered Bank at 18 The Bund in providing temporary accommodation for headquarters of the British Women's Association. It has been found possible to arrange not only for offices for the transaction of the Association's business but for a tea room and lounge for members as well.

These will be thrown open to members on next Wednesday afternoon, when tea will be served beginning at 4 o'clock. With a view to the convenience of members living at a distance from their work, who depend on tiffin of the sandwich order, it has been arranged to serve Bovril as well as tea and coffee daily between the hours of 12:30 and 1:30 p.m. The lounge will be furnished with newspapers and periodicals and the nucleus of a lending library will shortly be put at the disposal of members.

Of the three previous defendants, one committed suicide while in jail, one was sent to the Arsenal for execution and one was sentenced to ten years.

Three proprietors of opium dens were before the Court yesterday, one being sentenced to two months' imprisonment and the others to one month each, with the alternative of $50 fines. Eleven patrons seized in the raids were fined $3 each.

A coolie wanted by the Chinese authorities for an armed robbery in Pootung was ordered handed over to the City Magistrate's office.

The proprietor of a gambling den at 1198 Wuchow Road was fined $15 and 13 gamblers paid fines of $3 each.

ABC

OUR correspondent and stockholding bank in San Francisco has a history which goes back to the pioneer days of California. It is the successor of two old English banks, the Anglo-California and the London, Paris and American Bank, both pioneers in the exchange banking field. The Anglo and London Paris National Bank, successor to the two older banks, took a leading position on the West Coast and now enjoys the distinction of being the largest national bank in point of deposits in any city west of Chicago and St. Louis.

This is one of the nine great American banks which are stockholders in the Asia Banking Corporation.

Cotton

Messrs. J. Spunt and Company write as follows in their latest cotton market report.

China Cotton:—While no general activity transpired since the issue of our last report prices ruled slightly lower than the past week due to monetarial pressure among a certain portion of holders, which coupled with the paucity in the demand for the staple has encouraged bearish manipulations insofar as to engender a weakish tendency at the close.

As to the future trend of the market we can only reiterate what has been stated in our previous circular that it is advisable to take advantage of present rates for replenishing depleted stocks. Tone of the market Steady.

The British Chamber of Commerce of Hankow write as follows in their weekly circular dated Hankow, March 16.

FINANCE AND MONEY MARKET

There is again very little business to report owing to scarcity of Bills and no demand for remittance. Taels T.T. on Shanghai:—Remained at 97.1, about the same as last reported. Dollars, rose to 70.025—70.225 buyers and sellers respectively. Native Interest 4 percent.

EXPORTS

There are still enquiries for Goatskins but supplies are not forthcoming owing to the Season being practically over. Enquiries have also been received for Hides, Tallow, Seeds and Beans at prices which make business practically impossible. If anything, conditions are worse than last reported, and as a result there is very little doing.

IMPORTS

The market is quiet with practically no enquiry. Clearances good.

The Copper Coin Scandal

WE wish to direct public attention, and especially the attention of the Peking Government and the Diplomatic Body to the new study of the Chinese subsidiary currency situation, which has just been issued by Mr. Donald McColl, General Manager of the Shanghai Tramways.

The country, as Mr. McColl proves beyond dispute, is being flooded with copper coins of lowered intrinsic value. The profiteers are a few mint officials and the victims of this wholesale robbery are not only the whole people of China, both native and foreign, but the Chinese Government itself, for it has to accept these coins at face value in payment of duties and taxes.

The matter has become a public scandal. The percentage of these new coins noticed in the receipts of the tramways, has jumped from three percent to 12 percent in two years. In the last two years over three billion of these coins have been minted and put into circulation. The minting profit on these was over $3,500,000. The loss of the tramway company alone, due to the depreciation of these coins was $658,000 in 1920 and it will run well over $700,000 this year.

Mr. McColl says: "In China, vast numbers of the people are paid in copper coins and adjustments have not been made which compensate for the depreciation. The purchasing power of the people, therefore, has been reduced. The position is aggravated by higher prices for food and clothing. In a country like China, with the bulk of the population poor even at the best of times, a depreciated and further depreciating subsidiary currency, which is necessarily the main medium of exchange, must tend to intensify the struggle for existence. Reduction in intrinsic value and additional issues of coins are merely subtle methods of robbing the people. With actual famine and pestilence, the people can ill support the added burden of exploitation by the further watering of the currency. The depreciated coinage robs them every time they make a purchase."

The point for the government to consider is put by the writer as follows: "From the point of view of the Chinese Government, the policy of watering the currency is, of course, equally wrong. Initial profits on minting are soon far more than lost in the reaction upon the Government of the reduced paying power of the people consequent on the increasing depreciation of the coinage. The Government of a country and its people rise or fall together. Their interests cannot be separated. If depreciation of the coinage reduces purchasing power, duties and taxes must suffer. China's currency policy has been the worst both for the Government and the people: it is fraught with the gravest dangers, economic and other."

Mr. McColl urges that the immediate requirement is the absolute stoppage of minting of new coins. He adds that unless this is done, the consequences can hardly fail to be disastrous and far-reaching. To ensure this he recommends prohibition of the importation of copper discs and a suitable tax on the importation of copper not in manufactured forms.

He makes a further recommendation: "The scheme for the minting of Chinese silver dollars under foreign supervision to ensure the establishment of the dollar as a generally acceptable standard should be the first important step towards complete currency reform. The success of this scheme would depend mainly upon foreign supervision. If foreign experts could also be utilised to recommend revision of the defective Currency Law in the light of actual conditions and experience, and, under the provisions of the law so amended, to supervise reminting and the general reorganisation of the currency, an incalculable boon would be conferred upon China. After close attention to this subject for over 12 years, I see no other way in which China's Treaty obligations of 1902, in the interests of the Chinese people and all who have dealings with China, are likely to be fulfilled. It would appear to be unwise and against the interests of China to lend money to its Government unless definite arrangements are made for the reform of the whole currency under foreign supervision."

The italics are ours. Experience teaches that little good will come of this protest unless pressure is brought to bear on the government by the Diplomatic Body. This can be done under the provisions of the commercial treaties which exist between China and most of the countries trading with her. The particular provision in mind, is contained in the British Commercial Treaty of 1902 and reads as follows:

"China agrees to take the necessary steps to provide for a uniform national currency which shall be legal tender in payment of all duties, taxes and other obligations throughout the Empire by British as well as Chinese subjects."

In conclusion, Mr. McColl says: "Currency reform is urgent as a safeguard to what exists, an insurance against complete break-down: it is also a pre-requisite to many other reforms and to the development of the country in the interests of China and the rest of the world."

We heartily recommend a close perusal of the facts and figures in this pamphlet to the Peking authorities, both Chinese and foreign.

Bobbie And His Pa

BY WILLIAM F. KIRK

Our Sunday skool teecher was telling us about what a wise man Mister Solomon was.

You shuddent ought to call him Mister Solomon, Bobbie, sed Pa. He was a King, sed Pa. & you shud call him King Solomon. He may have been wise enuff in sum things, sed Pa, but he had the rong slant on house-keeping, sed Pa.

How so? sed Ma.

He kept house too much, sed Pa. He had a thousand (1,000) wifes, sed Pa, & if that is beeing a wise gent you will have to show me, sed Pa.

I doant think any one of the wifes cud have been vary brite eether, sed Ma, or thay wuddent have aloud any such araingement, Ma sed. The vary idee of beeing one littel frackshun of a fambly, sed Ma, eeven the fambly of a grate man like King Solomon.

Our teecher sed he rote a lot of wise pro-verbs. I sed. Is pro-verbs anything like ad-verbs?

No, Bobbie, sed Pa, pro-verbs is wise sayings such as offen say at breakfast or dinner, sed Pa, & ad-verbs moddy-fies verbs, sed Pa, like I mite say in a sentence, Yure mother dresses ex-tra-vagant-ly. In that true senteuce, sed Pa, ex-tra-vagant-ly is an adverb, sed Pa, beekaus it modifies dresses and the dresses aint vary moddified at that, sed Pa.

What a blessing it is for Bobbie to have his father nigh wen he seeketh wisdom, sed Ma. That sounds kind of like a proverb, Ma sed.

Did King Solomon git a big sallery? I sed.

He must have, Bobbie, sed Pa, to keep all them skirts around the pallis, sed Pa.

Vary likely a lot of them ladies worked to help keep things going, sed Ma, if they are anything like the wifes nowdays, sed Ma.

Maybe, sed Pa, but I doan't think so. The wife of a king cud hardly be expected to be a tiperiter or manny-curé gurl, sed Pa & I doant beleeve King Solomon wud have liked to have his wife work, sed Pa, or any of his wifes, I shud say. You know I nevver aloud you to work, sed Pa, tho you nevver showed any sines of starting out in the morning with a dinner pail, Pa sed.

Wen I grow up cud I have a lot of wifes if I wanted to, sed me to Pa.

No, Bobbie, sed Pa, that is aggenst the law now. In this country one wife is all a gent can have at a time. Pa sed, & vary offen one is a heep, sed Pa. A gent that longs for a lot of wifes, sed Pa, usually has a nice job cutting grass in a asy-lem sed Pa.

I have offen wondered what a grate man I wud have been by now if I had nevver married even on wife, sed Pa. But I suppoas I am grate enuff as it is, sed Pa. Yure deer mother has nevver been much of a handy-cap to me, sed Pa.

How sweet of you to admit it, sed Ma. I guess yure marridge kep you from beecumming another Shakespeer, sed Ma. & then Ma picked up a paiper & beegan to reed & I went to bed.

GOOD FRIDAY.

FOR MAN
By George Herbert

For us the winds do blow;
The earth doth rest, heaven move, and fountains flow.
Nothing we see, but means our good,
As our delight, or as our treasure:
The whole is, either our cupboard of food,
Or cabinet of pleasure.

The stars have us to bed;
Night draws the curtain, which the Sun withdraws:
Music and light attend our head.
All things unto our flesh are kind
In their descent and being; to our mind
In their ascent and cause.

BLACK FRIDAY.

Why Good Friday? And why not Black Friday?

Had a great disaster occurred upon a certain Friday nearly two thousand years ago, we should have remembered it as "Black Friday," just as we remember "Black Monday." What did occur nearly two thousand years ago was this:

The Son of the Almighty God who created Heaven and Earth, was taken by men and hung upon a cross; His hands and feet nailed to a cross.

The Son of the Almighty God allowed Himself to die.

The Son of the Almighty God allowed Himself to suffer the pangs of Humanity.

The Son of God is Good.
The Son of God is Good.
O my chief good,
How shall I measure out thy blood?
How shall I count what thee befell,
And each grief tell?

We, of this world, want to get all that we can out of the world; honors, riches, power, happiness—and there lies most of our present day trouble.

We have forgotten the purpose of the Creator. We were put here, made in the image of the Almighty God, to give to this world all the power that lies within us. But we don't give. We take.

The Son of God did not come to take. He came to give.

No Cross—No Crown.

Because He came to lose all, and thus gain all, today is not Black Friday it is Good Friday.

* * *

Have you ever thought that the seed that lies dormant is unable to exert its power until it falls to the earth and dies? Then it gives forth its life and we enjoy the harvest.

Frail Humanity. Have you ever thought that the crowds that cried on the first Palm Sunday Hozanna to the Son of David," screamed in their blindness five days afterwards "Crucify."

So much for the saneness of the crowd. And it is the same today.

"He is dispised and rejected of men." Isaiah LIII. 3.

Is it not strange, the darkest hour
That ever dawned on sinful earth
Should touch the heart with softer power
For comfort, than an angel's mirth?
That to the Cross the mourner's eye should turn
Sooner than where the stars of Christmas burn?

Yet so it is: for duly there
The bitter herbs of earth are set,
Till temper'd by the Saviour's prayer,
And with the Saviour's life-blood wet,
They turn to sweetness, and drop holy balm,
Soft as imprisoned martyr's deathbed calm.
—John Keble.

And so today is Good Friday.

Jutland Is Decided To Have Been An English Victory

The British Admiralty Blue Book Discusses The Fight Frankly, And Makes It Known Why The Germans Were Not Completely Destroyed

BY OTIS PEABODY SWIFT

The official dispatches concerning the Battle of Jutland, covering the period from May 30 to June 1, 1916, issued by the British Admiralty in the form of a Blue Book are in two volumes, the first being 600 pages of documents, the second charts and trackings of the battle, and were compiled with the object of throwing light on the unsettled questions of this much disputed sea battle.

The salient facts brought out by the papers are:

STILL ROOM FOR DISPUTE

1. That while Jutland was a British victory in fact—the German High Sea Fleet being crippled and forced to retreat to its base—the question of whether it was a tactical victory still remains open to controversy. The papers show that, due to low visibility and the confusion of battle, there was not the highest possible co-operation of the battleship and cruiser forces, and that battle contact of the highest possible efficacy was not achieved and maintained.

2. Beyond this fact, however, the British Secret Service, the Admiralty and the Grand Fleet worked with complete co-ordination, and Jutland was fought along previously determined lines. Jellicoe's much criticised action in "turning away from the enemy" resulted in saving his own ships and also in placing himself between his enemy and their base, thus obtaining a position of greatest strategic value Only the loss of contact, due to visibility, prevented the annihilation of the German fleet.

VALUE OF NEW ARMS

3. The main lesson of Jutland is that it shows the vital importance of new naval weapons, the destroyer, submarine, seaplane and the mine field. Much of Jellicoe's criticised caution was due to his fear of being led into a mine field or decoyed into submarine nests. The value of the destroyers, both as a screen and for reconnoitering, is emphasised, and seaplane reconnoiters provided valuable strategic data.

The facts of the Battle of Jutland are now history, but it may be well briefly to review them in consideration of new material contained in the Blue Book papers.

On May 30, 1916, the British Admiralty "received news" (assumedly from the British Secret Service in Germany) which pointed to early activity on the part of the German fleet. Action was taken at once and Admiralty telegram No. 434 of that date, sent to the commander in chief of the Grand Fleet, contained the following instructions.

"You should concentrate to eastward of Long Forties ready for eventualities."

GRAND FLEET READY

The Grand Fleet and battle cruiser fleet were made ready for sea, the Belgian coast patrol and Harwich destroyers were recalled, and at 10 p.m. the last vessels of the Grand Fleet were under way to sea. A tentative ocean rendezvous was set for 2 p.m., May 31, at latitude 57:45 north, longitude 4:15 east.

Delayed by fog, Jellicoe was a little late in arriving at this position the next day. At that time the entire Grand Fleet was sweeping south, on zigzag and in formation. Admiral Beatty, with the battle cruisers, was in the van. At 2:20 the Galatea, of the battle cruiser force, sent the general broadcast message.

"Enemy in sight!"

They had picked up the German battle fleet, under Admiral Scheer. The Grand Fleet had been standing on a southerly course. Jellicoe was to the north, behind the battle cruisers. The weather was unsettled, foggy, and visibility was poor. Contacts were hard to establish.

The Germans had been proceeding in a northwesterly direction, and Admiral Beatty at once crossed the "T" of their advance and opened battle. His attack caused the Germans to turn southeast again. Beatty paralleled their course, trying to get between the Germans and their base. His force suffered heavily.

JELLICOE COMES UP

Meanwhile Lord Jellicoe, in the fog to the north of the battle, had not yet made contact, being unable to find the enemy. At 4:52 the German fleet again turned northwest. Admiral Scheer did not know that he had engaged the entire Grand Fleet, and was surprised when he came upon the battleship force at 6 p.m. Lord Jellicoe, fearing submarine and torpedo boat attack, turned away from the Germans, then paralleled their course. At 7:23 p.m. he made another short turn away from torpedo boat attacks and at 7:33 another. Meanwhile Admiral Beatty, with the battle cruisers, had come up, and at 7:45 sent the following signal to Lord Jellicoe:

"Urgent: Submit van of battleships follow battle cruisers. We can then cut off whole of enemy's battle fleet."

Lord Jellicoe, who has been criticised for not taking a more aggressive plan in the battle, then made a turn toward the enemy at 7:41, but the range was widening and contact was soon after lost. The remainder of the night action was fought by the battle cruisers, which followed the crippled and retreating Germans. Contact was again lost, and by morning the enemy fleet had steered behind the British and gained the protection of the German mine fields behind Horn's Reef.

POINTS OF CRITICISM

In the past criticism of the Battle of Jutland has been largely along three lines—Jellicoe's action in turning away from the enemy, the fact that he did not follow Beatty's suggestion for an aggressive attack when the battle cruiser and battleship forces joined, and the action of the Admiralty in recalling the Harwich destroyers to port when they could have proved a valuable factor in the battle.

The Blue Book papers bring out the following points in regard to these controversial matters:

1. They publish a dispatch submitted by Lord Jellicoe to the secretary of the Admiralty on October 30, 1914, in which he outlined the probable course of a major action with the German High Sea Fleet and advocated the exact tactics he followed. These tactics had the approval of the Admiralty. New weapons of warfare had to be dealt with, and there was no previous experience on which to base conclusions. Jellicoe feared a decoy into mine or submarine traps, and believed in caution. His turning at strategic moments prevented the loss of ships and enabled him to outpoint the enemy, cutting him off from his base.

LORD BEATTY'S MESSAGE

2. Lord Beatty did at one time send a message urging Lord Jellicoe to follow him and saying that this action would cut off the German fleet. This signal was not made at the time critics have assumed it to be made, but later. Lord Jellicoe did respond to the request. The record of messages does not give the result, but Lord Jellicoe has said that the battle cruisers were hidden by the fog and smoke and that he could not find them.

3 In the question of the Harwich destroyers the records show that at 4:45 p.m. on May 31 Commodore Tyrwhitt asked leave of the Admiralty to take his vessels to the scene of the fleet action. At 5:12 he took them to sea so as to be ready for the Admiralty's permission. At 5:40 the Admiralty, which feared a raid on the coast, ordered them back. At 3:09 a.m., now reassured, the Admiralty ordered them to join Lord Jellicoe. At 7:02 p.m. it ordered them back, there being no prospect of action.

THE LESSONS OF JUTLAND

In Admiral von Scheer's report to the Kaiser he sums up the experience of the battle with the words:

"The large war vessel, battleship and cruiser, is and remains the foundation of sea power and should be further developed by enlarging the caliber of the guns, increasing the speed and perfecting the armor above and below the waterline."

Lord Jellicoe says that the British losses were due to the lightness of armor of the battle cruisers, and that speed was a valuable factor for the Germans.

"It is evident," he writes, "that all German ships possess a speed far in excess of that for which they are nominally designed."

The battle, furthermore, showed that the Germans were excellent gunners, got on their target and stayed on, and that they had an excellent system of night recognition signals which did away with much of the danger of firing on your own vessels during a night battle.

The importance of submarines, mines and surface torpedo craft is emphasised. The present type of battleship is vulnerable to these weapons. It must be strengthened in armor and speed to meet new conditions.

Destroyers were very valuable for screen and scout work, but the German wireless men "jammed" the air and prevented important wireless data from getting through from the scout destroyers to the commander in chief.

RECORD BATTLE MESSAGES

A vivid and thrilling section of the Blue Book is the record of messages bearing on the battle, in which all official messages sent during the operation—some 3,500 in all—are recorded. They were sent by telegraph to shore stations, by flags, semaphore and radio between vessels, sent from battleships, mine sweepers, destroyers and seaplanes. The record begins with the "Concentrate for eventualities" message from the British Secret Service:

May 30.

11:58 a.m. Admiralty to Dover. Harwich destroyers return there at once. Recall Belgian coast patrols temporarily.

12:05 p.m. Admiralty to East Coast. Recall mine-sweeping sloops.

12:37. Admiralty to Maidstone: Have all submarines ready for sea at short notice.

6:11 C. in C. to mine sweepers: Keep sloops out tonight, Tuesday. Fleet may come out.

6:55 Admiralty to East Coast. Recall auxiliary patrols by secret word.

7:00 C. in C. to cruisers and destroyers. Raise steam for 19 knots.

8:15 C. in C. to Cyclops: Gates

SOLUTION OF THE RIDDLE

Those who have been interested in the quotation referring to Mistress Anne Boleyn (1507-1536) viz:

"Mistress Anne was sent home again to her father for a season; whereat she smoked."

will, by referring to the Book of Deuteronomy, Chapter XXIX, verse 20, find the use of this word "smoked" duly authenticated and its meaning made clear.

Jutland Is Decided To Have Been An English Victory

(of harbor not) to be opened at 9:30 for fleet leaving.

8:15 C. in C. General Fleet will leave tonight by D. T. 3 method, ships in close order.

9:30. Senior Officer Light Cruiser Squadron to Squadron: Weigh (anchor).

A SPLENDID PANORAMA

Now the fleet is standing out to sea, down the Firth of Forth. It is a summer night; on either side of the wide firth rise the low Scottish hills. All the fleet swings slowly into motion. First the Cyclops, dropping down to draw back the wire submarine net. Then the stubby mine sweepers, slipping out with their kites and trawls to clear a sea lane. A destroyer flotilla, in close formation, passes down to sea to form a scouting screen ahead. The light cruisers follow, and at last the battleships—every ship dark and silent—form in a long line and disappear.

For the next fifteen hours the entire Grand Fleet maneuvered, first to the north, then turning again on a southerly course. The orders are all fleet formations, with a bit of gossip of passing ships. Then at 11:58 wireless contact is made with the enemy.

May 31.

11:58: St. Vincent to C. in C. German coded message received from IZ to IB. Strength 3 W. L. 2100 feet. Telefunken. German naval procedure used.

2:20 Engadine—General: Urgent. Two cruisers, probably hostile, in sight bearing E. S. E. Course unknown. My position is 56° 48′ N., 56° 50′ N., 5° 19′ E.

2:20 C. in C.—General. Alter course two points starboard.

2:34. Galatea to Senior Officer Battle Cruiser Force: Urgent: Enemy ships are two destroyers. Am chasing.

2:39 Galatea to Senior Officer B. C. S. Urgent. Have sighted large amount of smoke as though from a fleet bearing E. N. E. My position 56′ 50″ N, 5′ 19″ E.

2:47 Senior Officer B. C. S. to Engadine (seaplane tender). Send up two seaplanes to scout E. N. E. Am sending two destroyers to you.

2:51: Galatea to S. O. B. C. F. Urgent Smoke seems to be seven vessels besides destroyers and cruisers. They have turned north.

3:00 S. O. L. C. F. to 2 L. C. S. Prepare to attack van of the enemy.

3:00. C. in C. General: Assume complete readiness for action in every respect.

THE BATTLE IS ON

That was the opening of the battle. A fog hung over the North Sea. The light cruiser force, miles ahead of the battleship force, had made contact. It was the German High Sea Fleet. Lord Jellicoe, to the north, could not find the fight, but he could direct action by radio. The Germans did not know that he was there. Meanwhile fire had opened and the ranges were closing in. At 3:55 Beatty sent the following message to Jellicoe:

Urgent. Am engaging enemy. My position is lat. 56° 53′ N., long. 5° 31′ E.

4:00. Warspite—General: Opened fire.

4:00. Senior officer 5th Battle Squadron to Squadron: Open fire and engage the enemy.

11:38: S. O. 2 L. C. S. to C. in C. Have engaged enemy cruisers bearing W. S. W.

GERMANS IN FLIGHT

So the orders carry the battle on through the night. The battleship fleet did not again make contact; the cruisers pursued and harassed the crippled Germans. One by one the ships called up to report their damage and their dead. Tugs were odeded out from Scotland to bring in crippled ships. A scouting Zeppelin was driven off by anti-aircraft guns, and report came from the chasing cruisers that more enemy craft were being disabled. All night long the Grand Fleet moved southeast, trying to prevent the Germans from making Horn's Reef. If they could have held them at sea for another day there would have been an opportunity for a complete, annihilating victory, but when morning came the Germans had gained the protection of their mine fields.

The Blue Book papers, which have thrown much new light on Jutland, have again aroused the controversy which waged among naval authorities after the battle. The general opinion is that everything was done that could be done, in view of the visibility conditions, but some critics feel that the Grand Fleet did not have the opportunity to show its power.

Admiral Percy Scott, in speaking of the Jutland documents, says:

DIDN'T HAVE FULL SCOPE

"The magnificent fighting qualities of our officers and men did not obtain full scope, owing to the defensive tactics adopted by the battle fleet off Jutland, though this was with previous concurrence and full subsequent approval of the Admiralty. On that head there had never been any serious doubt."

The Rhyming Optimist

THE REMEDY

(By Aline Michaelis)

Some fellows kick and grumble and say life treats them rough, their lot is far too humble, they are not up to snuff. They say: "'Tis surely cruel and awfully unfair to have to dine on gruel while Smith has caviar. Life always treats me yellow, and makes me don blue jeans while Johnny Vandefellow rolls round in limousines. "Oh, they are foolish, clearly, with little brains or wit, not knowing life is merely what people make of it. For men who grunt from rising till twelve p.m. or so, if rich would be devising some other cause for woe. The remedy is simple, if folks who grunt and growl would like to wear a dimple and throw away their scowl. If they would quit repining for some one else's car, and stop their silly whining for ocean trips afar, they might have time for noting the spots on sun and bloom, would they but cease devoting their hours to wooing gloom. But chaps who keep on picking distress to fill the years are only glad when kicking, so leave them to their tears.
